The pin file is only.Q: How can I make predictions on a random forest using the same X, Y and Z input files? I have a dataset with 1000 samples that has 150 attributes and 7 features are to predict a categorical variable. I am trying to build a random forest to predict the categorical variable so I can apply the predictions on a test dataset. My inputs for this random forest include the same X, Y and Z input files. I am confused on the most proper way to predict with the same X, Y and Z files in Python and whether Python is efficient enough to do this. My thought process: I create a random forest classifier using the same X, Y and Z files:

import sys #
READ DATA INPUTS X = pd.read_csv('/Users/username/Desktop/random_forest.csv') Y = pd.read_csv('/Users/usern

ame/Desktop/dataset_for_prediction.csv') # READ CSV
FILES Z =
pd.read_csv('/Users/username/Desktop/chunks.csv') #
NEW INPUT DATA TO THE CLASSIFIER # Use the variables
in X, Y and Z dataframes # and create 3 column vectors of X, Y and Z features # and add them to the `Input` object X_new, Y_new, Z_new = x.X, x.Y, x.Z # CREATE CLASSIFIER classifier = RandomForestClassifier(n_estimators=100,
max_depth=10, num
