What is Photoshop? Photoshop is a raster graphics editor developed by Adobe Systems and is the most common tool for digital image editing. Photoshop supports the full range of raster graphics. Photoshop has a layer-based editing system that enables raster image creation and altering with multiple overlays that support transparency. Photoshop is usually found in the graphics section of the creative software category on most computer systems, but it can also be found in the photo section. One of Photoshop's features is the adjustment layers, which allow a user to make non-destructive changes to their image. Photoshop has acquired some additional features in more recent versions, such as 2D to 3D. In the more recent versions of Photoshop, they can make use of additional multimedia software, such as Adobe After Effects, to help with the editing of the images. However, they can be added onto the user-friendly interface of the program, providing another tool for image improvement. Standard Features Some of the most common features of Photoshop are cropping, image sizing, adding text, and adjusting color. Cropping Cropping refers to selecting an area of the image that includes the content of interest, and then removing an area of the image. This can be done with the Selection tool, the Rectangular Marquee tool, or the Crop tool. Cropping can be done to make a pleasing or interesting photo. You can crop an image without losing its resolution, as long as the resulting image size does not exceed the limits of the display device. Some people like to use the marquee tool to select an area of the image. A rectangle can be drawn around the area of interest, and then the image will be cropped in that area and saved. Sometimes users cut around the edges of an image, for instance, to include only a certain part of an image within the saved image. Using the crop tool with the crop key is another way to crop an image. The crop tool allows you to select the area you want to remove from the image, either by using the box tool and holding it around the area, or by dragging a rectangle around the area. You can move the image you are cropping to another portion of the canvas by holding down the Alt key and drag the image. Photoshop will move the image up, down, left or right. Image Sizing Image sizing refers to rescaling an image. This is done

Arrested at the airport... On 6th Nov 2016, I was waiting for departure at the Chennai airport for my flight to Goa. Everything was fine. Since I was waiting for a long time, and had packed very little for my trip, I went to the 24hr store to buy some stuff to have with me on the flight. This was my first time traveling on an international flight, and I was trying my best to have 'just in case' things with me. Being Indian, I also enjoy my time in Goa, and would have a couple of beer's and a couple of bottles of wine with me while I am there. I went to the 24 hr store and bought the stuff I needed. At that time, I also bought a few local chocolates for my children, since they would be starving while at the Goan beaches. I had some wine on hand, and some beer. After I had finished my shopping, I was very much tired, and I was looking forward to get to the lounge to have a cup of tea or a coffee (knowingly or unknowingly, I had added a couple of packets of tea and coffee in my water bottle), and read a few magazines to pass the time while waiting for my flight. And so, I started reading the magazine. This magazine was lying on the bottom of my bag. There was no one at the counter in the lounge who had my name on his list, and there were two young men behind the counter who were chatting and joking. Since they were younger than I was, I didn't mind, as I was tired and had to wait anyway. I was only paying them little attention. After finishing the magazine, I started a conversation with one of them, and asked him, if he is an only child, is his mother a good cook? He said that his mother was, and then proceeded to give me a phone number. I thanked him, and gave him some money to pay him, as he was helping me. I left the lounge and there was no sign of him anywhere. I asked the counter person, and she said that that man had left. I was a bit disappointed, but it was also somewhat relieving that I didn't have to see the man, who I thought was a total stranger. I had never had an issue with strangers in my life before, and it was also the first time I was travelling alone. So, I thanked God
