The .1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to the field of digital imaging, and more particularly to photo auto flashes. 2. Description of the Related Art Many applications in the art have attempted to solve the problem of illuminating subjects in a scene. In the field of digital photography, auto flash systems have been designed to minimize the amount of light that will affect the coloration of the photographic image itself. Numerous applications in the art focus on how best to compensate for the inherent deficiencies of using electronic flash as a means to illuminate a subject. On conventional flashes, the flash is used to illuminate a subject. With the use of a tripod, the flash may be located far away from the subject. The farther the light source is from the subject, the lower the amount of light that will reach the subject.Q: Using XmlSerializer to serialize a nested object? The problem is as follow. I have a class containing a string. I want to serialize this class to a file. Since this string value is within a different class, I need to use the XmlSerializer class. This class is created and deserialized using a.NET 2.0 framework, so I can't use new XmlSerializer(this) or some other methods from 4.0. I have a class defined like this : public class MyClass { public string myVal { get; set; } } I create a new instance of this class, and I want to save it to a file: var myClass = new MyClass(); myClass.myVal = "123"; FileStream fs = new FileStream("test.xml", FileMode.Create); XmlWriterSettings settings = new XmlWriterSettings(); settings.Indent = true; XmlWriter
