Crack code can be used for numerous things.
Code consists of a series of instructions and they may be used to learn how to do something or to unlock a computer. It can also be used to send messages. Code can be sent as plain text or encoded by a cipher. Encoded messages are encrypted, which means that it is impossible for anyone to read the code without the key. Many codes use an encryption method known as a substitution cipher. There are lots of codes out there that you can look up and do.
